Description

Minimalism and basic lines mark these long upholstered benches, with or without back, which convey a sense of comfort and weightlessness. A more massive look on the front that becomes slimmer on the sides, as if it was a carved block, and a generous size that enhances the effect of mid-air suspension conveyed by the bright metal tubular support, are the features perfectly epitomized by the designer through the name Cloud given to this project. The back, which look small in comparison to the seat, end with a short fold-back part at the top on which to rest your arms comfortably while seated. A curved joint shaped like a quarter-circle enables to combine benches of different sizes, with or without backs, to create seats of various lengths and shapes, producing original landscapes in public areas. Finally, an elegant wooden board can be placed on the seat to act as a top or service element.
